MESSAGE FROM FATHER WILSON

Dear Friends in Christ,

On Ash Wednesday, we entered into one of the richest periods in the liturgical year: Lent. For forty days, we will accompany Jesus in his fight with the devil and his encounter with God the Father.

The silence and solitude of the desert is impressive. Likewise, it is surprising to see the Son of Man being tempted by Satan, just like any of us. But Christ fights and is victorious. This is a lesson for us. We also will be victorious if we are with him, and if, like him, we put up a fight through fasting, penance and prayer.

It may seem that Christ was in a hurry to change the world, and yet he isn't rushed. In obedience to the promptings of the Holy Spirit, he goes to the desert. What a great lesson for us who always want to do things so quickly and effortlessly!

Going to the desert means having an encounter with ourselves in God's presence. Monks and hermits used to find a deserted place for prayer; we at least should find a deserted time.

In the midst of the hustle and bustle of our daily life, we need to recover an empty space in our surroundings, where we can hear the beating of our heart and be free from the tyranny of the urgent, free from that unreasonable agenda, free from those unforeseen commitments, a place where we can enter into contact with the deep recesses of our soul.

Concerning the Hebrew people, the Pharaoh probably said something like this: "Give them more work so they are busy, and that way they won't listen to what Moses is saying and they won't hatch up a plot to become free." The "pharaohs" of our world are saying: "Give them overwhelming information to make their heads spin so they can't even think or make decisions on their own, so that in the end they just follow what we tell them to do."

Living in the desert means not just living apart from the world but living with God and for God. Thus, the desert becomes a place to meet God. A presence that is certain, yet hidden, secret. May the Spirit that "drove Jesus into the desert" prepare us to celebrate Easter, renewed in the spirit!

All the best...in Christ,

Father Wilson
